Project Title: Volkswagen Bus Website

I'd like to build this site as multiple pages, rather than a long, single page website. I plan to use either the typical site navigation across the top or a side bar that can be expanded when moused over. I think there is plenty of content and photography to build out individual pages, but I think I would need to pull the photography from more than just Wikipedia's source.

- Home Page/Introduction – Show many images of VW buses throughout history and list their time periods.
- History – List a brief overview of the history of VW vans and their cultural meaning.
- Variants – List and show the different types of vans (panel van, double door van, high roof panel van, etc.)
- First Generation – Display and explain the first generation of the VW van (T1, 1950).
- Second Generation – Display and explain the second generation of the VW van (T2, 1967).
- Third Generation – Display and explain the third generation of the VW van (T3, 1979).
- Fourth Generation – Display and explain the fourth generation of the VW van (T4, 1990).
- Fifth Generation – Display and explain the fifth generation of the VW van (T5, 2003).
- Sixth Generation – Display and explain the sixth generation of the VW van (T6, 2015).
- Microbus – Explain the evolution of the van to the microbus and display images.
- Hippie Van – Explain the culture embedded behind the hippie van and how VW played a role in this movement.
